

The Little Mouse -- Andrew

A little mouse was there, popping its head in and looking about at the entrance of the cave, ensuring there were no any enemies waiting out side. It then crept around, observing an opened cupboard and climbing into it.

Fortunately, a slice of cheese papered in front of the mouse, seemed it was saying "come here and eat me!"

Soon, the little mouse took most of the cheese, lying on the plate satisfactorily and falling asleep. Suddenly, the door was opened. A stout man entered his kitchen and recalled that he had left a piece of cheese from the dinner yesterday, so the famished guy opened the cupboard and took down the plate without noticing the mouse and the disappearing cheese. The mouse was startled by the man's act, letting out a shriek and jumping off the plate. Meanwhile, the man was scared by the mouse too. He then yelled for help and rushed out of the kitchen. what a adventurous experience!
